TIGTA and congressional investigations involving IRS managers & employees can create complex situations that often blindside the employee we represent. Over the course of your career, you only need to have one complaint made against you or someone in your office, to have your entire career decision making process put under a microscope. It happens, and if it happens to you without PLI in place, you will spend a lot of your own time and money formulating your responses, articulating your reasons, practices or processes, and defending against the allegations or disciplinary processes.

You are eligible for agency reimbursement up to half the cost of this insurance for a reason. Don't delay. Out of pocket premium of about $150, after reimbursement, will not change your standard of living. A claim without FEDS Protection in place, most certainly will.
